

Written by Allan Besselink
Sunday, 11 April 2010 12:19

---

Maverick  I am admittedly a little bit old-school. Though I have fully embraced technology, I do still appreciate the simplicity and peace of reading the morning newspaper and having a cup of freshly-brewed java along with it. I might be one of the 10 or so people left on the planet that are still reading the paper the old-fashioned way.

When you read the news, and ponder what you're actually reading, you're oftentimes left wondering. Did someone really say that? Really? Seriously? Surely you jest. Truth can, at times, be stranger than fiction.

Some of these "newsworthy" items (and I use that phrase loosely) make you want to laugh. Or throw up. Or something in between the two. They may not deserve a full blog post to themselves, but do deserve the light of day.

Today, I am starting a new feature called "Rhubarb Ruminations". You've seen the occasional "Playlist Pondering" as I have reflected on music. Similar concept, different topic. A rhubarb is a "quarrel, fight or heated discussion", and I think that there are some things that merit a little bit of discussion in our world. Rhubarb is also a plant that is also known for its medicinal qualities as a laxative, among other things.

Rumination is simply the act of pondering, or perhaps even more appropriate, the act or process of chewing cud. This, of course, is stimulated by the presence of roughage, something that rhubarb would certainly provide. Suffice it to say that "Rhubarb Ruminations" will provide some hot and tasty news briefs, regurgitated Rhubarb-style, to keep you thinking, discussing, and maybe even laughing.

So today I bring to you a few classic items from the last 24 hours. And they just happen to revolve around, imagine this, the Party Of No.

Item 1: Imagine this, for a moment. You have worked hard to brand yourself. You use your brand name in the title of your autobiography. You even run for President of the United States of America with the same branding. And suddenly, you decide that enough is enough? Say denies that he ever was one. In his own McCain The Maverick Fights For His Soul words, "I never considered myself a maverick. I consider myself a person who serves the people of Arizona to the best of his abilities". Wow. I'd swear Senator McCain himself told us this not so long ago. Cue up the music to Memories.

Maverick McCain Victim Of His Own Hype to the maverick title used by John McCain Sen. John McCain. He now

So now that that particular Maverick has left us, we're now left with The New Maverick or perhaps I Am Not Running In 2012 But I Sure Do A Lot Of Stump Speeches Maverick or The Tea-Partyin, Alaska-Lovin, Nuke-u-lar Regulation Maverick. Yes, the Maverick Who Has Used Up Her 15 Minutes Of Fame 100 Times Over.

Sarah Palin. In a Palin And Obama Spar From A Distance shot over the bow that I am sure will scare intellectuals everywhere, she's already started to take on President Barack Obama

Obama. While doing so, she's given Democrats everywhere something to put a smile on their faces - about 2 years in advance. And she's starting with a discussion on nuke-ular weapons. Do you ever start to wonder a) when all of this posturing is going to end, and b) when she'd going to spend some time learning the issues instead of rabble-rousing the Tea Party crowd? But wait, in the same breath as Sarah Palin, I bring you one of her bestest of friends

Written by Allan Besselink
Sunday, 11 April 2010 12:19

---

Item 3: Governor [Rick Perry](http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Rick_Perry "Rick Perry"). In the same article, Perry [Palin And Obama Spar From A Distance](http://www.statesman.com/news/nation/palin-obama-spar-from-a-distance-543592.html "Palin And Obama Spar From A Distance") noted that in the upcoming elections, GOP candidates should tell voters "Elect me and I'm going to Washington, D.C, and will try to make it as inconsequential on your life as I can make it". Frankly, I don't want my elected representatives to be inconsequential. I want them to get in there and do what is right for the constituents. If that means raising a ruckus, then by George, raise it! We've had far too much inconsequentialism out of our elected officials. Sorry, Governor Perry, but we have had perhaps a little too much of this inconsequentialism in Texas already.

Tune in next time for more Rhubarb Ruminations when truth is, yes, stranger than fiction. Indeed.

Photo credit: [xadrian](http://www.flickr.com/photos/93374685@N00/2832660057/ "xadrian on Flickr")

Related articles by Zemanta

- Rachel Maddow: 'Maverick' McCain Victim of His Own Hype (videocafe.crooksandliars.com)

- 'I never considered myself a maverick' (washingtonmonthly.com)
- Andy Ostroy: McCain's Mavericky Maverick Denial: The Videotape, Unlike the Senator, Doesn't Lie (huffingtonpost.com)
- John McCain: I'm NOT A Maverick -- Or Am I? \(VIDEOS\) (huffingtonpost.com)

